Project: Fire Station Feasibility Study

Overview The project consisted of conducting a feasibility study of the building structure and envelop in order to determine if the existing main fire station should be remodeled and brought up to current building and wind codes or be torn down. ADG surveyed the structure, ran structural calculations and then wrote a report that was clear and concise. They went the extra mile for the county by making a presentation of their findings to the Board of County Commissioners. Mr. Taylor and his staff have managed this and other projects for the County with a positive and professional manner. We would certainly not hesitate to work with this firm on future projects.
